

JAMES I. GIBSON library

Henderson Libraries oldest location, the James I. Gibson Library, moved to a brand-new building in the Lake Mead Crossings shopping center in July 2010. The new facility features a drive-thru window for requested material, a computer lab for 28 users, a teen area, two study rooms, and additional space for programs and other activities. The new building is 4000 sq. ft. larger than the previous Water Street location, and the site includes space to add 7000 sq. ft. in the future. The ample parking and high visibility will help build on the library's increasing popularity.
